

Issue 3 Call for Papers
South Asian Studies: Transnational Issues
Guest editor: Dr. Kuldip Gill

The editors of the UCFV Research Review welcome contributions for the October, 2006 issue. The central theme, South Asian Studies: Transnational issues, provides a critical focus and reflects the journal's interdisciplinary approach. This issue will be published in October, 2006 and connects to current interests at the new Centre for Indo-Canadian Studies and Research (www.ucfv.ca/icrc) at the University College of the Fraser Valley, Abbotsford, BC. Published in Canada, this issue links to India in a variety of realms, including the cultural, political, economic, social, and literary, and through diverse disciplinary and interdisciplinary frameworks.

The editors welcome articles and review submissions from a wide range of disciplines. The following four general categories delineate the areas from which papers are solicited:

- ❖ Cultural studies: language, literature, film and media, ethnographics
- ❖ Security: religious pluralism, terrorism, public safety issues
- ❖ Diaspora
- ❖ Gender and family relations

Papers should be 4000–6500 words and written for a general academic audience. Papers may take the form of research papers, literature reviews, evaluations, position papers, case studies, research reports and notes from the field, or other works of social, political, economic, ideological, or historical significance.

The editorial board will evaluate submissions for suitability, contribution to the field, accuracy and interest. The double-blind peer-review process is conducted electronically.

Please submit papers in Word as e-mail attachments to the editor for this issue, Dr. Kuldip Gill (kuldip.gill@ucfv.ca). A statement that the manuscript is original unpublished material that has not been submitted elsewhere for publication should accompany the submission. For more information, please see the Submission Guidelines found at the Review's web site.

*Deadline for submission of manuscripts: August 15, 2006

The UCFV Research Review is a peer-reviewed online journal. The topics selected for each issue are of regional and wider importance. The aim of the journal is to present papers in a form that is quickly and easily accessible to the international academic community and to the general public. The Review invites submission from practitioners and scholars working in academic institutions, industry and public and private agencies. Student submissions are also encouraged.