

In 1917 Mayo Singh and his partners established The Mayo Bros. Timber Co. in behalf of thirty four shareholders.

Originally known as Mayo Siding the name was officially changed to Paldi in 1936, chosen in honour of Mayo Singh's home village in Punjab. [or the founders home village]

The Sikh Temple was officially opened July 1st, 1919 in conjunction with Canada's Dominion Day now Canada day.

The community took on the atmosphere of a village in Punjab with the Gurdwara in the centre.

Paldi is historically, culturally and spiritually significant because of the Sikh Gurdwara that was the centre of social and religious activity.

The structure retains the key aspects found in Gurdwaras including the Sikh Aasan a room containing the 104 yr. old Guru Granth Sahib .

Paldi is a place of honour and respect for the courage, innovation and dedication of the communities economic founders, early pioneers and later generations.
